

Record Transfer Report - Baseline 2012

Date of issue July 2012

Response date by, or before, 6th September 2012, please

Departments have reported their records holdings to The National Archives in the last few years. Additionally, as part of the preparatory work for the 20YR Implementation, ministerial departments have provided submissions twice in 2010 and 2011.

The contents of this workbook have been developed with the 20 YR Stakeholder Working Group, with representatives from all major government departments. The core task was to ensure this reporting suite meets the requirements of reporting to the Lord Chancellor, but is not onerous and can be easily populated from existing data sources within departments. Specific thanks are extended to these departments for their help in the definition of this reporting suite.

This information will be reported to the Lord Chancellor and published on our website. Departments should be mindful that this reporting event may attract interest from external stakeholders and so you may choose to link to this material from your own website and define handling strategies as you see fit.

Guidance Notes:

The first sheet of this workbook contains the minimum mandatory reporting set for the Lord Ch:

The second sheet in the workbook is automatically uploaded with these 12 data points, but also

Finally, the following three sheets are the Healthcheck statement sets. They identify the key ca

The legacy holdings for which The Pensions Regulator is responsible were created by:

- The Occupational Pensions Board (1955 to 1997)
- The Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority (1997 to 2005).

The records of the Occupational Pensions Board that were selected for transfer to TNA have already been transferred, under classes DM1-3.

Transfer practices for effective records transfer

The following statements of capability all have reference either to the Lord Chancellor's Section 46 Code of Practice or guidance published on The National Archives' website (nationalarchives.gov.uk/information-management). The following competencies should indicate the capability to meet the required rate of records transfer under the Public Records Act and the revised obligations under the 20 Year Rule.

Departments should be able to meet all the requirements of the Lord Chancellor's Code of Practice on the management of records issued under section 46 of the Freedom of Information Act, 2000. This is enshrined in Part 2 Section 19: Transmission of Public Records, as below:

19.1 It is the responsibility of authorities transferring records to ensure that those records are adequately prepared and are transferred with the level of security appropriate to the confidentiality of the information they contain.

Tick all statements that apply below - you should be confident that the statement applies across your organisation.

Policy The department has internally approved plans and resource allocation to support the required rate and control of records transfer, complying with The National Archives' standards.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Check

Selection The department has secured and trained the appropriate resources to undertake the record selection decisions, with a planned timetable to secure approval from The National Archives.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Check
---	---

Sensitivity The department has secured and trained the appropriate resources to undertake sensitivity review and the annual transfer process meets the Lord Chancellor's Advisory Council timetable for approval.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Check
---	---

Access Arising from the Lord Chancellor's approvals, the department can implement the proper access categorisation, redaction and preparation of accurate dummy cards.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Check
--	---

Destruction The department has a planned destruction timetable (approved by The National Archives) with the facility to confirm completion (audit trail).	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Check
---	---

Catalogue The department has an appropriate and sustainable number of catalogue staff (or third-party arrangement), with the correct skills with planned events for sign-off by The National Archives.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Check

Digital records: readiness for transfer

Departments which met the 2004 Modernising Government target for digital records management will start transferring those records to The National Archives by the end of the 20-year rule transition period. Though this is some years away, many departments were early adopters of digital working, and others will wish to benefit from the option of transferring digital records early. All will need to develop their capability in this area in line with the 20-year rule transfer timetable.

The following statements of capability reference guidance published on The National Archives' website (nationalarchives.gov.uk/information-management). The full range of capabilities described below will be required to successfully transfer digital records to The National Archives.

Tick all statements that apply below - you should be confident that the statement applies across your organisation.

Data handling The department has proven procedures for digital records handling, which maintain the confidentiality and integrity of records and metadata throughout the transfer process. Additionally, each transfer will contain checksum data which can be used to verify that the files received at TNA are identical to those sent by the department.	<input type="checkbox"/> Check
---	--------------------------------

File formats The department is able to accurately identify the file formats (and format versions) of its records using DROID (or similar). All formats to be transferred are economically preservable as defined in The National Archives' guidance on suitable file formats for transfer.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Check
--	---

Records and metadata The department is able to export records and associated metadata, including the six minimum mandatory metadata fields specified in The National Archives' digital transfer guidance (title, identifier/context, creator, date created, copyright, protective marking/closure).	<input type="checkbox"/> Check
---	--------------------------------

Technical environment The department understands the technical environment and characteristics of their records, including the IT systems and platforms used to store and manage them, the software originally used to create them, record types and volumes.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Check
---	---

Plans The department has created a high-level transfer plan which identifies digital records series due for transfer and includes agreed timescales for transfer.	<input type="checkbox"/> Check
---	--------------------------------

Sensitivity The department has a proven mechanism for conducting digital sensitivity review on its own records, which is consistent with the sensitivity of the information and includes a mechanism for indicating any applicable FOI exemptions. Where required, the department is able to redact digital records in line with The National Archives' digital redaction guidance.	<input type="checkbox"/> Check
---	--------------------------------

Selection The department understands how its selection policies relate to digital records and has a process for selecting digital records for permanent preservation in line with these policies.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Check
---	---

Availability The department's digital records are available for use. The records are free of malware or corruption; the department is able to remove password protection, encryption, digital rights management and similar access restrictions before transfer; the department has the required software and can open the records.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Check
---	---

Knowledge and understanding The department understands the full extent of its digital records, irrespective of their format or the systems in which they are held. Digital records are included in the department's Information Asset Register and What to Keep schedule.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Check
